

Abstract

A system and method for creating customized electronic messages to allow for enhanced and customized appearance and presentation of electronic messages. This system and method takes an original electronic message, retrieves a wrapper from a set of wrappers located on a wrapper server, creates a branded electronic message prior to transmission to a recipient and allows the sender to preview the branded electronic message prior to its transmission.